GROWING OLD.

"You are growing old," they tell us,
Every year;
"You are more alone," they tell us,
Every year;
You can win no new affection,
You have only recollection,
Deeper sorrows and dejection,
Every year.

There come new cares and sorrows
Every year;
Darker days and darker morrows
Every year;
The ghost of dead loves haunt us,
The ghosts of changed friends taunt us,
And disappointments daunt us,
Every year.

Too true! Life's shores are shifting
Every year;
And we are seaward drifting
Every year;
Old places changing fret us,
The living more forget us,
There are fewer to regret us,
Every year.

But the truer life draws nigher
Every year;
And the Morning Star climbs higher
Every year;
Earth's hold on us grows slighter,
And the heavy burden lighter,
And the Dawn Immortal brighter,
Every year.

A grewsome sight those sailors had presented when called up for sentence in the morning, and a remorseful quartette they proved. Moreover, to the consul general, who had been called in in the interest of fair play for Jack, they declared that they were innocent of all evil intent. They only went in for a little fun with the soldiers. It was that San Francisco fellow who called himself Spence when he was sober and Sackett when he got drunk who brought on the row and then abandoned them to their fate. He had owned that he "had it in" for soldiers in general—hated the whole gang of them and wanted to see them well licked. He had plenty of money and would pay their fines if the police "ran them in," and now had left them in the lurch.

They had no money and were confronted with the probability of a month's labor with the "chain gang" on the public roads if the consul general couldn't get them off. So that amiable official had gone out to the flotilla and had a talk with the Colorado officers and the three brawny heroes of the billiard room battle, with the result that everybody agreed to heap all the blame on the vanished culprit in the check suit, and the sailors got off with a nominal fine and went home to nurse their bruises and their wrath against Spence, alias Sackett. That fellow shouldn't get away on the Miowera if they could help it.

All this Stuyvesant was pondering over as, after stopping to leave his P. C. at the Pacific club, he strolled down Fort street on his way to the boat landing. The big whistle of an incoming steamer had attracted his attention as he left the consul general's to make one more call, and at the club he heard some one say the Miowera had reached her dock and would sail for Australia in the morning.

The sky, that had been so cloudless early in the evening, became somewhat overcast by 11, and the moonlight was dim and vague as he reached the landing.

In his several trips to and from the transport it happened that he had fallen frequently into the hands of a bright Kanaka boatboy whose admirable rowing and handling of the boat had pleased and interested him. "Be ready to take me out about 11:30," he had told him, and now where was he?

Several officers and soldiers were there bargaining with the boatmen, and three or four of these amphibious Hawaiians precipitated themselves on Stuyvesant with appeals for a job, but he asked for Joe.

"Him gone," was the answer of an eager rival. "Him other job," but even as they would have persuaded Stuyvesant that Joe was not to be had and his selection must be one of their number, Joe himself came running from the direction of a warehouse a short pistol shot away.

"What kept you, Joe?" asked Stuyvesant, as the light boat danced away on the tide.

"Weller want me take him outside Miowera," was the answer; "him behind warehouse."

"The deuce you say!" exclaimed Stuyvesant, turning about in the stern sheets and gazing back to shore. "Are they landing stairs at the warehouse, and is he waiting for you there?"

"Huh," nodded Joe.

"Then here," said Stuyvesant, glancing moonward and noting with satisfaction that the luminary was behind a thick bank of clouds. "Turn back and row to the warehouse steps. I want to look at that fellow." So saying, he quickly threw off his uniform coat with its gleaming shoulder straps and collar device, stowed his forage cap under the seat and sat bareheaded and in his shirt sleeves.

Obedient to Joe's powerful strokes the little boat was speedily gliding in among the shadows of the sailing ships moored along the quay, and presently her stern was swung round to a flight of stone steps, and Stuyvesant bounded ashore. Over at the boat landing the electric lights were gleaming and the sound of many voices chattering over boat fares was heard. Here among the sheds and warehouses all was silence and darkness, but Stuyvesant unhesitatingly strode straight to the corner of the big building and into the blackness of the westward side, peering right and left in search of the skulker who dared not come to the open dock, yet sought means of reaching the Australian steamer.

For a moment he could distinguish no living object, then paused to listen, and within ten seconds was rewarded. Somewhere close at hand between him and a low shed to his left there was the sound of sudden collision and a muttered oath. Some invisible body had bumped against some invisible box, and, turning sharply, Stuyvesant made a spring, and the next instant had grappled with some burly, powerful form and was dragging it, despite furious resistance, towards the light.

He was conscious of the sickening odor of sour whisky, of a volley of mad threats and imprecations, of a stinging blow in the face that only served to make him cling the tighter to his prisoner. Then, as they swayed and struggled to and fro, he felt that he was not gaining ground and that this unseen ruffian might at all escape him. He lifted up his voice in a mighty shout:

"Police! Police! This way!" Then he heard a savage oath, a sputtering, savage "Let go, d—n your soul!" and then felt a sharp, stinging pain in the right side—another—another; and earth and sky reeled as his grasp relaxed, and with a moan of anguish he sank fainting on the dock.

CHAPTER IX.

Vinton's fleet reached Manila. A third expedition had coaled at Honolulu and gone on its way. More transports were coming, and still there lingered in this lovely land of sun and flowers—lingered for a time 'twixt life and death—Vinton's stricken aid-de-camp, Lieut. Stuyvesant.

Of his brutal antagonist no trace had been found. The shrill cries of the Kanaka boatboy, supplementing the young officer's stentorian shout for the police, had brought two or three Hawaiian star bearers and club wielders to the scene of that fierce and well-nigh fatal struggle. All they found was the gallant victim writhing in pain upon the dock, his hand pressed to his side and covered with the blood that poured from his wounds.

It was half an hour before a surgeon reached them, rowed in with the general from the Vanguard. By that time consciousness had fled, and, through loss of the vital fluid, Stuyvesant's pulse was well-nigh gone. They bore him to the Royal Hawaiian, where a cool and comfortable room could be had, and there, early on the following morning, and to the care of local physicians, the general was compelled to leave him.

With the brakeman to aid them, the police searched every nook and corner of the Miowera, and without result. Murray, alias Spence, alias Sackett, fugitive from justice, could not be aboard that ship unless he had burrowed beneath the coal in the bunkers, in which event the stokers promised he should be shoveled into the furnace as soon as discovered. Every sailor's lodging house in the town was ransacked, but to no purpose. Murray could not be found.

For a fortnight Stuyvesant's fate was in doubt. Officers of the third expedition could carry with them to Manila only the hope that he might recover. Not until the ships of the fourth flotilla were sighted was the doctor able to say that the chances were now decidedly in his favor.

He was lifted into a reclining chair the day of the flag raising—that pathetic ceremony in which, through tear-dimmed eyes, the people saw their old and much-loved emblem supplanted by the stars and stripes of their new hope and aspirations. He was sitting up, languid, pallid and grievously thin, when the tidings reached him that the transport with six troops of the 11th cavalry, among others, had arrived, and the doctor, with a quizzical grin on his genial face, informed his patient that some Red Cross nurses were with the command, and that two very nice-looking young women, in their official caps, aprons and badges, were at that moment inquiring at the office if they could not see the invalid officer and be of some service to him.

Sore in body and spirit, wrathful at the fate that robbed him of a share of the glory he felt sure awaited his comrades at Manila, Stuyvesant was in no humor for a joke, and plainly showed it. He gave it distinctly to be understood that he needed no coddling of any kind and preferred not to see the ladies, no matter what they belonged to. Not to put too fine a point upon it, Mr. Stuyvesant said he didn't "wish to be bothered," and this was practically the reply that reached two very earnest, kind-hearted young women, for the attendant, scenting the possible loss of a big fee if he should be supplanted by superior attractions, communicated the invalid's exact words to the Red Cross nurses, and they went back, wounded, to their ship.

Stuyvesant's room was on the ground floor in one of the outlying cottages and its Venetian blinds opened on the broad and breezy veranda. It was far more quiet and retired than apartments in the main building, the rooms overhead being vacant and the occupants of that which adjoined his having left for San Francisco within a day or two of his coming.

"I feel too forlorn to see anybody," was his explanation to the doctor. "So don't let anybody in." But several officers from the transport got leave to come ashore and take quarters at the Hawaiian. The rooms above had to be given to them, and their resounding footsteps made him wince.

"There's two ladies to take this next-door room," said his garrulous attendant that afternoon, and Stuyvesant thought opprobrious things. "They'll be giggling and talking all night, I suppose," said he, disgustedly, when the "medico" came in late that afternoon. "I wish you'd move me, if you can't them."

The doctor went and consulted the head of the house. "Certainly," said that amiable Boniface. "If Mr. Stuyvesant is well enough to be carried up one flight I can give him a larger, airier room with bath attached, where he'll be entirely isolated. It was too expensive for our visitors from the transports, but—I believe you said Mr. Stuyvesant—wouldn't mind"—a tentative at which the doctor looked wise and sagely winked.

When that able practitioner returned to the cottage two young women with Red Cross badges were seated on the veranda, just in from a drive, apparently, and a little dark-eyed chap in the uniform of a subaltern of the cavalry was with them. They had drawn their chairs into the shade and close to the Venetian blinds, behind which in his darkened room reclined the languid patient.

"That will drive him simply mad," said the doctor to himself, and prepared a professional smile with which to tell the glad tidings that he should be borne forthwith to higher regions.

He had left Stuyvesant peevish, fretful, but otherwise inert, asking only to be spared from intrusion. He found him alert, intent, eager—his eyes kindling, his cheeks almost flushing. The instant the doctor began to speak the patient checked him and bent his ear to the sound of soft voices and laughter from without.

"I've fixed it all," whispered the medical man, reassuringly. "We'll move you in a minute—just as soon as I can call in another man or two," and he started for the door, whereat his erratic patient again uplifted a hand and beckoned, and the doctor tip-toed to his side and bent his ear and looked puzzled, perturbed, but finally pleased. Stuyvesant said that, thinking it all over, he "guessed" he would rather stay where he was.

And then, when the doctor was gone, what did he do but take a brace in his chair and bid the attendant go out and say to the officer on the veranda, Lieut. Ray, that Mr. Stuyvesant would be very glad to speak with him if he'd be so kind as to come in, whereat the soft laughter suddenly ceased.

There was a sound of light footsteps going in one direction and a spring, soldierly step coming in the other. Then entered Mr. Sanford Ray, with outstretched hand, and the attendant, following and peering over his shoulder, marveled at the sudden change that had come over his master.

Three days later, when the City of Sacramento was pronounced ready to proceed and the officers and Red Cross nurses en route to Manila were warned to rejoin the ship, Lieut. Stuyvesant "shook," so to speak, his civil physician, persuaded the army surgeons with the fleet that a sea voyage was all he needed to make a new man of him and was carried aboard the Sacramento and given an airy stateroom on the upper deck.

HE FELT A SHARP, STINGING PAIN IN THE SIDE.

vacated in his favor by one of the ship's officers—consideration not made public, but Claus Spreckles & Co., bankers, had never before received such a deposit from this very able seaman in all the years he had been sailing or steaming in and out of Honolulu harbor.

And now retribution overtook the invalid. The Red Cross had made a marvelous name for itself in San Francisco and was already organized and doing wonders at Honolulu. Its ministrations had been gladly accepted by the scores of officers and men among the volunteers, to whom the somewhat bare and crude conditions of camp hospitals were doubtless very trying. Women of gentlest birth and most refined associations donned its badge and dress and wrought in ward, kitchen or refectory. It was a noble and patriotic purpose that inspired such sacrifice.

It was a joy to the embryo soldiery to be fed and comforted day by day with the delicacies of the Red Cross tables; but there were military magnates and martinetes who dared to question the wisdom of such preparation for the stern scenes of campaigning ahead of the volunteers, and who presumed to point out to the officers of this great and far-reaching charity that, while they were most grateful for such dainties for the invalids of their command, the daily spectacle of scores of lusty, hearty young heroes feasting at the tables of the Red Cross, to the neglect of their own simple but sufficient rations, prompted the query as to what the boys would do without the Red Cross when they got into the field and couldn't have cake and pie and cream with their coffee.

The Red Cross, very properly, took umbrage at such suggestions and branded the suggestors as horrid. The Red Cross had done such widespread good and was ready to do so much more that criticism of its methods was well-nigh unbearable. And now that it had obtained the sanction of the government to send out to Manila not only supplies and dainties of every possible kind, but dozens of its members to serve as nurses to the sick and wounded, it scored a triumph over rival organizations, notably the Patriotic Daughters of America, whose vice president, the austere Miss Perkins, first bombarded the papers in vain protest and denunciation, the Red Cross being her main objective, and with abuse of the commanding officers in camp; then called in person on the same officers to demand transportation to Manila with the next expedition.

The Red Cross held its head very high, and with reason. It ruffled its feathers and resented any slight. It sometimes mistook courteous protest against its lavish gifts to such soldiers as were in no wise needy as vicious and unhallowed criticism, and occasionally—only occasionally—it grievously enlarged and exaggerated alleged slights received at the hands of luckless officials. And then even those soft and shapely hands could develop catlike claws and the soothing voices take on an acid and scathing intonation, and the eyes, so ready to moisten with pity and sympathy at the sight of suffering, could shoot spiteful little fires at the objects of such divined displeasure, and poor Stuyvesant's petulant words, wrung from him in a moment of exasperation and never intended to reach the fair band of sisters of the cross, were piled high with additions, impolitic, impolite, discourteous, impudent, intolerable—yes, even profane and blasphemous.

Eleven of the twelve Red Cross nurses, packed three in a room aboard the Sacramento, swore they would not have anything to do with Mr. Stuyvesant. The twelfth, the one soldier's daughter in the band, said nothing at all.

MAN-EATING LIONS.

The Belgians Abandon One of Their Stations on Account of Them.

The Katanga company, which is developing the rubber and other resources of a large district in the upper Congo basin, has abandoned the station of Kululu, which it had established on Lake Moero. Though a great deal of labor has been expended in making this station a large and desirable post the region around it became infested with man-eating lions. It was therefore decided to seek another location. Quite a number of natives in the service of the state were killed by these lions within a few weeks. The victims were dragged into the jungle and eaten. Many men saved their lives only by climbing trees, thus getting out of reach of the howling beasts beneath them. Everywhere along the paths and brooks the lions lay in wait for their prey, and no man knew when he might be struck to earth by the terrible foe lurking in the jungle all ready for the fatal spring, says an eastern exchange.

A man-eating lion is one that has tasted human flesh, likes it better than the meat of any of the animals upon which its kind is wont to prey, and therefore will eat nothing else if it is able to kill man, woman or child. In the past three years it has been more than usually in evidence in East Africa—between Victoria Nyanza and the Indian ocean. The man-eaters killed many natives and also a considerable number of laborers on the Uganda railroad. They filled the thousands of Indian and black laborers with such terror that the men finally refused to work until all the lions had been killed.

When man-eating lions come to the neighborhood of human habitations one of two things must be done. Either the inhabitants must get out of the country, for their lives are not safe there for a moment, or else they must kill every lion of the man-eating type that has come into their district. It is fortunate that lions of this type are comparatively few in number. If all lions were man-eaters Africa would become uninhabitable, unless the world organized a gigantic lion hunt to wipe the whole species out of existence.

Lincoln's Father as a Boy.

Thomas Lincoln, the father of Abraham Lincoln, was a great story teller and one year that he never tired of rehearsing was a blood-curdling Indian tale. One day, when he was about seven or eight years old and living in Kentucky, he was sitting on a fence watching his father and older brothers at work in the field. Without a moment's warning a small band of Indians came rushing by on horseback. One of them, with a sweep of his long arm, seized the lad and galloped off. Little Tommy Lincoln looked up into the red warrior's face and said: "Don't kill me. Take me a prisoner." The Indian smiled. Just then a rifle cracked. Indian and boy tumbled off the horse, the Indian dead, with a bullet in his brain. Tommy Lincoln's brother had come to the rescue.—Argonaut.

Orders from Headquarters.

An Irish recruit in one of his majesty's riding schools had the misfortune to part company with his horse. According to custom, the sergeant strode up to him and demanded: "Did you receive orders to dismount?" "I did, sir." "Where from?" "From headquarters, yer honor," said Paddy, with a grin.—Answers.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

While philosophy will not prevent a man from falling in love it is a well-known fact that love interferes with a lot of philosophy.—Chicago Daily News.

Van Braam—"I'm sorry your salary has been reduced. You told me you were working for a raise." Dinwiddie—"That's what I was; but the boss spelled it r-a-z-e."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

"Why has that promoter not got his company started yet?" "He says that he has trouble finding quarters." "More likely it is finding larger coins than that which is giving him the most trouble."—Indianapolis News.

"The ship is on a rock!" shrieked the excited passenger aboard a trans-Atlantic liner. "Thank heaven!" exclaimed the untraveled homesick passenger, fervently, "we have struck land at last!"—Ohio State Journal.

Diplomatic—"The earrings are very pretty," she said, with just a tinge of disappointment, "but the stones are very small." "But, my dear," replied the foxy man, "if they were any larger they would be all out of proportion to the size of your ears."—Philadelphia Press.

"Jane did you say that George had no strength of character?" "Do you mean George Strickland?" "Yes," I mean George Strickland, the man I'm going to marry." "Well, you see, my dear, I had just heard that George proposed to you, and what I said was that he was very easily suited."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Brown—"It's curious about people's beliefs. They will give entire credence to the most absurd things and put no faith whatever in the most obvious truths." Black—"Yes, I've noticed it. There's Greene, now. He hasn't the least confidence in hash; but he'll eat all the croquettes and mince pie you can set before him."—Boston Transcript.

WESTERN PILOTS' TROUBLES.

Where They Can Not Tell from One Minute to Another What the Current Is.

They were seated on a tugboat, at the foot of Broad street, talking shop, as pilots will, three of them explaining to the fourth, who wore a broad brimmed soft felt hat and a western air, the dangers and difficulties of piloting in New York bay and along the neighboring coasts, says the New York Herald.

"You fellows don't really know what piloting is," answered the westerner, without showing that he was deeply impressed. "You tell very fine stories, indeed, but it is all child's play with you. You know what the water is, what the tides and currents are, and you have your charts and compass. That's just too easy."

"How would you like to pilot where you can't tell what the current is from one minute to another, where the depth of water is not the same from one hour to another; where the channel shifts while you are watching it; where dry land was the week before, and where on a return trip you find your course has moved into another state and been twisted out of all recognition?"

"There is no making a chart under those conditions, and yet that is what we have out in Missouri. You fellows just don't know what piloting is. Why, the very last time I came down that muddy old stream, at places I found it running north where it had been running south when I went up, and heading east where before it had been going west."

"The swift current, quicksands and loose soil don't make very substantial banks, and when you go to sleep at night you can't tell where the river will be in the morning. Piloting under those conditions is a trick that you people know nothing about."

"The first time I went up the Missouri I found Omaha directly on its bank, and the next time I went the city was a mile from the river. Sometimes its channel is in the middle; sometimes on one side, sometimes on the other; sometimes every place and sometimes no place."

"That river is a regular juggler, tossing Nebraska and Iowa back and forth regardless of consequences. It is now working into Iowa and building up Nebraska at a rapid rate. Come and visit me and I will show you where wits are necessary to pilot a boat, because charts and tables and compasses are no more use to you for navigation purposes than a dress pattern, a multiplication table and a sun dial."

Quaint Duties in Isle of Man.

There was a quaint ceremony at Castletown one day lately when the great inquests for the three southern "shearings" of the Isle of Man were sworn. The duties of these inquests are curious and interesting, since they include the presenting of punishment for all persons who encroach upon the commons and other public easements, of all persons who suffer their pigs to go unringed, and of persons who keep horses and cattle suffering from disease. The inquests have also to see that millers are sworn to deal honestly with the public.—London Mail.

Large Goat Herds, No Forests. Greece pays dearly for her goats. They are everywhere, and wherever they are young trees cannot grow. The holm oak, for example, if left to itself attains a height of 30 or 40 feet; but it is usually kept down by the goats to the dimensions of a shrub, at the top of which they continually gnaw.—Forest Leaves.

Her First Football Game. She—"It is a rough game, isn't it?" He—"Why, yes; but you didn't expect to see it settled by arbitration, did you?"—Puck.

Johnny Obeded.
"Children," said the teacher, while instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but simply be yourselves and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspiration from outside sources."

As a result of this advice Johnny Wise turned in the following composition: "We should not attempt any flights of fancy, but write what is in us. In me there is my stummick, lungs, hart, liver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick lemon candy and my dinner."—Baltimore American.

Just the Man.
"I say," said the business man to the detective, "some fellow has been representing himself as a collector of ours. He has been taking in more money than any two men we have, and I want him collared as quickly as you can."

"All right," I'll have him in jail in less than a week."

"Great Scott, man! I don't want to put him in jail; I want to engage him."—Boston Transcript.

Bad Investment.
Theodore—"It's all right, darling. I have met your father, and we took to one another at once. He even went so far as to borrow ten dollars of me. Surely, he can't refuse me your hand after that."

Edith—"Dory, I'm afraid you've made a mess of it. Pa told me about the ten dollars, and said I'd better let you slide; that you were too easy."—Boston Transcript.

No matter what ails you, headache to a cancer, you will never get well until your bowels are put right. SWIFT CHAMP, EDITOR AND OWNER.

To The Public.

On account of ill health, I have leased THE BOURBON NEWS office to Mr. Geo. D. Mitenell, for a term of years, who will conduct the paper in the future. Mr. Mitchell is an experienced newspaper man, having been associated with such papers as the Kansas City Journal, the Cincinnati Enquirer and other journals, and is conversant with all the details pertaining to the management of a newspaper, and I take pleasure in recommending him to the public, and am satisfied that he will conduct the NEWS in a way that will reflect credit upon himself and the paper. Mr. Mitchell will take possession on January 1st.

In severing my connection with the NEWS for the time being, I desire to return my sincere thanks to a generous public for the hearty support that has been accorded the paper, and bespeak for Mr. Mitchell the good will and support of its patrons. SWIFT CHAMP.

Barnum's Monkeys

"All well—all happy—lots of fun". That is the regular report from the monkey cage of Barnum's Circus ever since the keepers began dosing the monkeys with Scott's Emulsion. Consumption was carrying off two thirds of them every year and the circus has to buy new ones.

One day a keeper accidentally broke a bottle of Scott's Emulsion near the monkey cage and the monkeys eagerly lapped it up from the floor. This suggested the idea that it might do them good. Since then the monkeys have received regular doses and the keepers report very few deaths from consumption. Of course it's cheaper to buy Scott's Emulsion than new monkeys—and that suits the circus men.

Consumption in monkeys and in man is the same disease. If you have it or are threatened with it can you take the hint?

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle. Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York. 50c and $1. all druggists.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be resorted to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting. Examinations free. Next visit Thursday, Nov. 28, 1901.

The scenery was unusually fine, and the acting company was the best that has been seen in this city.

The market is abundantly supplied with rabbits. Here in Paris, the whole lot of jobbers, or Nicholas county vendors are trying to hold up the price, and make our dealers pay $1.10 per dozen, having them little profit, if they are re-filled at 10 cents. They are necessarily compelled to retail them at 12-1-2 cents to make a profit. There is no occasion for this, for the woods are full of them, and they ought to be retailed at 10 cents, or three for a quarter. Our merchants should fix their own price when buying them.

Mr. Ed Hite, of our local fire department, visited Lexington, on Tuesday, and gave an exhibition, before the city officials, of that city, of a new nozzle for fire hose. It is styled the "Neptune" and is a simple contrivance, being about eight inches in length with a frame attachment, by which it can be hooked to a ladder, or rested upon the ground in such a manner as to direct the stream in any direction. Mayor Duncan has agreed to purchase one of the "Neptune" nozzles.

Mr. Hite took to Lexington a coupling by which with proper attachment, the Lexington fire hose can be used in connection with the Paris hydrants, in the event our city should need the assistance of Lexington again. The Parisians also took with them on their return one of Lexington hose couplings, so that it may also be arranged that if it should be necessary, at any time, for the Paris department to help Lexington, she will be able to use the Lexington hydrants and prove of great benefit. The departments of the two cities appear to be on the very best of terms, a condition that affords the people much satisfaction.

Matrimonial.

The following invitations have been received by friends in this city:

Mrs. Dudley M. Ball requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Susan Mitchum to Mr. Charlton Alexander, Jr., On Thursday evening, December the third at seven o'clock At Christian Church Versailles, Ky.

On last Tuesday, one of the prettiest ceremonies that has ever been seen was that of the marriage of Mr. Wm. Walker and Miss Naunye Brashear, at Hodgenville, Ky. Those present were Messrs. Ben Ridgeway, Ben Brashear, T. C. Williams, and R. D. Brown; Mesdames R. S. Thompson, Birdie Lary, B. D. Brown; Misses Alleen Liver, Madie Pusey, and Etty Branch. Mr. Walker holds a position of trust with the Northern Pacific at Lockhart, Texas. Miss Naunye was one of the belles of Northern Kentucky and numbers her friends by the hundred. She has frequently visited friends here in Paris, who will wish her happiness in her matrimonial venture.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Elizabeth Morris Goodman, daughter of J. L. Goodman, of Flemingsburg, to Mr. Horace Willis Coleman, of Fayette county. The marriage will take place in January.

Mr. Charles R. Kessee, of Mt. Sterling, and Mrs. Jessie McFarland Thompson, of Latour, Ark., were married. The Helena, Ark., World, says: "There is a bit of romance behind this announcement, for many years ago, before either Mr. Kessee or Mrs. Thompson were married—they have both been married before—they knew each other back there in the Blue Grass State, Mrs. Kessee, then Miss Jessie McFarland, went on the stage in a company managed by her father, and in which her mother was the stellar attraction, and traveled the country over with good success. The McFarlands were friends, in his early days, of the late Lawrence Barrett, and were associated more or less intimately with other stage people of renown. In their old age, however, they settled in Helena, where their daughter married and acquired property. Lately, learning that she was here, and a widow, and alone, Mr. Kessee, feeling the need of a wife to comfort him, sought her out and won her to his way of thinking. The quiet marriage of this morning tells the rest."

Miss Sarah Marshall, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. K. Marshall, and Mr. W. T. Morrison, of Bowling Green, will wed on next Wednesday. Her father was pastor of Christian Church, of this city at one time.

The fire company gave a public test of direct pressure from the water works yesterday afternoon, on the public square. The new Neptune nozzle, handled by a small boy, threw a 1½ inch stream, with a pressure of 85 pound to the square inch. This shows the advantage of the new, over the old style nozzle. The height of the stream was 1½ inch at 97 feet, and inch and three-eighths at 88 feet. A one inch of the old style nozzle 94 feet. The fire company is now in excellent shape to combat with fires.

ELIJAH WOODARD, an aged colored citizen, living in Lylesville, died on Tuesday. His life was insured in the Sun Company, for $100. The colored man, Richardson, who was killed by Buck Freeman, also carried an insurance of $150 on his life.

AN ATTACK ON MINERS.

Union Men Assault Nonunion Men Near Vincennes, Ind.

The Mine is Run on the Co-Operative Plan, and the Operators Claim That They Can Not Pay Union Wages.

Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 20.—Four hundred union miners from Washington, Cannellburg, Petersburg, Princeton and Montgomery arrived here at an early hour Tuesday morning, and at 5 o'clock made an attack upon the non-union miners employed at the Prospect Hill mines near this city. As a result two men are fatally hurt, and a half dozen more are seriously injured. The union miners formed at the union station and marched to the mines. Just as the men of the day shift were going on duty they were attacked, and received horrible treatment.

The union men asked for the foreman, William Scott, and when told that he was in bed, said: "All right, we will get him," and started after him, and for a short time pandemonium reigned. In the melee that followed, Mr. Scott and his family defended themselves as best they could, but were powerless.

Scott was badly beaten about the head and face, and W. P. Collins, an attorney at Washington, a brother-in-law of Scott, visiting there, sustained injuries that may prove fatal. He had a rib broken, and an eye badly injured. Henry Hannerly, a miner, was so badly beaten by the men, that he had to be removed to the city where he could be given medical attention, and his injuries are such that he may die. Mrs. Scott was slapped in the face, and when she resented the attack, it is alleged that one of the men drew a gun and told her he would make short work of her if she persisted in her foolishness. Otis Scott, the 15-year-old son, was knocked down as was also Dottie, the 10-year-old daughter of Scott.

Others that suffered at the hands of the visitors were, Robert McDaniel, Posey Knight, John Scott and Kenner Mars. All are badly bruised about the head and face. It is said there that no word was spoken to Scott until the fight began.

In the fight the stove was knocked over and a big hole was burned in the floor. Some of the miners, however, picked up the stove and extinguished the fire. The house was badly damaged. Almost every window was broken, and one of the doors was battered down.

Only 40 men are employed, and the mine is run on the co-operative plan and independently. The operators claim that they can not pay the union scale and run, but say they pay the highest price possible, and in some instances pay more than scale prices. They claim to mine from 50 to 60 tons a day, and thereby are able to give a few men employment. There is great confusion over the attack, and another raid is expected. The union miners say they will force the mine to unionize or close up, but one of the two must be done. Further trouble is anticipated.

BIG BLAZE AT ST. PAUL, MINN.

Property to the Amount of $150,000 Destroyed—The Loss Is Partly Covered By Insurance.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 20.—Fire which broke out in the five-story brick building of the People's Storage Co. Tuesday evening entailed a loss estimated at $150,000. The ground floor was occupied by stores, while the upper stories were used mostly as a warehouse by the People's Storage Co., and were fitted mostly with household furniture. Most of the damage was done to the contents of the warehouse, about $30,000 of the total loss being on the building. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES STRIKE.

Brakemen, Freight Handlers and Switchmen of the N. Y., N. H. & Hartford Road Go Out.

New York, Nov. 20.—Nearly 800 men, comprising the entire force of brakemen, freight handlers and switchmen of the New York division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, went on strike Tuesday. The reputed cause of the strike is the discharge of the assistant superintendent, Robert Thurbush, of the Mott haven yards. The strike also materially affects the tugboat and float system of the railroad in this city.

Negroes Boycot a Street Railway. Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 20.—The Negroes who have instituted a boycott against the street cars on account of the recent ordinance separating the races from the cars, held a mass meeting and agreed to organize a stock company of 20,000 shares at $1 a share to operate a stage coach service throughout the city exclusively for Negroes.

Squatters Being Ejected. Guthrie, O. T., Nov. 20.—Revenue Inspector Guy P. Cobb is in the Creek Nation at the head of a strong force of Indian police ejecting squatters and putting Creek citizens in possession of their allotments, as designated by the government.

Prominent Physician Dropped Dead. Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 20.—Dr. Dwight Washington Day, a prominent physician of this section of the state dropped dead Tuesday afternoon while reading a paper before the Inter-State Medical society. Apoplexy.

COLON CAPTURED.

The Government Forces Surprised and the City Taken After a Short Engagement.

Colon, Colombia, Nov. 21.—On receipt of the news that Gen. Alban, the military commander of the Isthmus, had started to attack the liberals at Chorrera, near Panama, the latter detached 150 men, under Gen. Patino, to attack Colon. This force embarked on board a train bound from Panama to Colon Wednesday evening at Las Cascades Station, previously cutting off telegraphic communication across the Isthmus. On arriving at the outskirts of Colon where the government usually maintained a small guard, the liberals left the train and in the initial skirmish which began soon afterward Patino was killed.

The command of the liberals then devolved on Col. Frederico Barrera, and they continued their march on Colon, arriving a few minutes after the train, thus surprising the whole town. The government troops at Colon were outnumbered by the liberals. Fighting immediately began at the quarter (barracks), which was soon taken. There Senor Jaen, a judge of the criminal court, was killed and Senor Muskus, the district representative of the department of the interior, was mortally wounded.

Fighting subsequently occurred at the town hall, which was also taken by the liberals. Among the prisoners captured by the liberals there were the prefect, guardia and the commander of the police. Senor Paredes managed to reach the gunboat Gen. Pinzon, which sailed Tuesday night for a destination unknown, probably Cartagena. The whole affair was over in less than three hours.

Communication with Panama was restored Wednesday. This revealed that no fighting had occurred there, that everything was quiet and that the city was in the hands of the government. The issue now depends on the result of the fighting which is doubtless now occurring at Chorrera, news of which is anxiously awaited here.

The liberals are busy raising reinforcements locally. They are reported to have several hundred men at different railroad stations between here and Panama.

The United States gunboat Machias landed a detachment of marines here Wednesday morning. They are now guarding the railroad station and other property of the road.

At a conference between Commander McCrea, of the Machias, United States Consul Malmors, Col. Shaler, superintendent of the Panama railroad, and Col. Barrera, the commander of the liberals, the latter was informed that the marines had been landed from the Machias. Barrera promised to guard the city with his troops.

Trains will be crossing the isthmus as usual Thursday. There has been no obstruction of free transit so far. The news of the capture of Colon, which reached Panama, where communication with that city was restored Wednesday morning, was a great surprise to the inhabitants of that city.

The receipts from all internal sources for the first three months of the current fiscal year ending September 30, 1901, were $73,115,536, a decrease as compared with the corresponding period last year of $5,355,386; upon this basis the commissioner estimated the receipts for the current year will approximate $280,000,000.

AN AWFUL CRASH.

Seven Persons Were Killed and Several Injured in a Railway Collision on the Santa Fe Road.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—In a passenger wreck on the Santa Fe railroad one mile west of Franconia, Ariz., a switch station 20 miles west of Needles, Cal., Wednesday morning, seven trainmen were killed, and three passengers and 14 trainmen were injured. Two limited trains one east, and one west bound, crashed together while running at full speed. The east bound train was drawn by two engines, while the other train had but one locomotive. The three engines were crushed and blown to pieces by an explosion which followed the collision. Both the trains were made up of heavy vestibuled cars, and several of the cars burned up. The dining cars, one on each train, one Pullman and two composite cars were destroyed.

The collision is said to have been due to a disregarding of orders on the part of the crew of the west bound limited. From all accounts, however, it is gathered that the east bound train had orders to take the siding at Franconia, and await the passing of the west bound flyer, which was running two hours late, and trying to make up time.

The east bound train failed to reach the siding, and, as the west bound train did not wait for it, the two trains collided without warning, and with an awful crash. The boiler of the west bound train is said to have exploded immediately after the crash, scalding to death those of the engine crews who had not been killed outright. The bodies of Case and Armitage, firemen of the east bound train, and Sam Brown, waiter on the west bound train, are missing, and it is believed they were burned to death.

A scene of awful confusion followed the crash. The massive engines piled in an indescribable mass of broken and twisted steel, while the scalding steam hung in a dense, suffocating cloud over the debris, amidst which the agonizing cries of the injured and dying could be heard. The heavy Pullman and composite cars jammed the dining and baggage cars upon the pile, carrying death to the dining cars crews and setting the cars afire.

THE NATIONAL GRANGERS.

Lewiston, Me., Nov. 21.—The National Grange adopted resolutions urging congress to put a tax of 10 cents a pound on oleomargarine and all substitutes for dairy butter, and in favor of a universal peace congress in connection with the exposition at Charleston.

THIRTY LIVES LOST.

Fire in Tunnel of the Smuggler Union Mine, Telluride, Col.

The Shaft Was Filled With Smoke and It Was Six Hours Before a Rescuing Party Could Effect An Entrance.

Telluride, Col., Nov. 21.—By a fire in the Bullion tunnel, belonging to the Smuggler Union Mining Co., probably 30 lives were lost Wednesday. Seventeen bodies have been recovered. The fire, which is known to have been accidental, started Wednesday morning in the buildings at the mouth of the tunnel. At this point is located the upper terminal of the tramway to the company's new mill at Pandora and it was in the bunk house attached that the fire first started. From this it spread to the terminal station, which, with its ore bins and machinery, is a mass of ruins.

The day shift of 200 men had entered the mine and reached their stations when the fire broke out.

The tunnel acted as a flue and a great volume of smoke poured in and filled the slopes.

About 170 of the men succeeded in reaching safety by another exit. The fire rapidly burned itself out, but the mine was so filled with smoke that it was six hours before rescuing parties could penetrate the slopes where the less fortunate were. At 1 o'clock the first body was recovered, and at 6:30 17 dead had been removed from the mine. The engineer, Hugh J. O'Neill, was found alive, but is not expected to recover. No list of dead is yet obtainable.

CLEM STUDEBAKER DYING.

His Illness Is Stomach Trouble, From Which He Has Suffered For More Than a Year.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 21.—Hon. Clem Studebaker, president of the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing Co., wagon makers, is dying at his home here. His illness is stomach trouble, from which he has been suffering for more than a year. A portion of the present year was spent in Europe and his health was somewhat improved. He suffered a severe fall at the pier in New York just after landing, however, and this worked against a more rapid improvement. The first warning that death was near came Tuesday night, when Mr. Studebaker suffered a sinking spell. Wednesday he suffered a relapse and Wednesday night his family, consisting of Mrs. Charles Arthur Carlisle and sons, Col. George M. Studebaker and Clement Studebaker, jr., were expecting the worst. Mr. Studebaker is 70 years of age. He was honored with high appointments by President Harrison and was a personal friend of President McKinley.

MISS ELLEN M. STONE'S RANSOM.

Mr. Dickinson Has Sent An Ultimatum to the Brigands Who Are Holding Her a Prisoner.

Sofia, Nov. 21.—The foreign office avers that, acting upon the suggestion of Mr. Dickinson, it caused the village of Gratchow to be surrounded and searched a fortnight ago, but the brigands were not there.

The latest intelligence received here sets forth that the brigands are holding out for a high figure of ransom, and it is asserted that they are able to keep their captives as long as this may be necessary.

Mr. Dickinson, according to the Vezerna Posta, whose editor was a member of the former Macedonian committee, has sent an ultimatum to the brigands giving them six days to accept the sum of $60,000 for the ransom for Miss Stone. If this amount is not accepted within the time mentioned Mr. Dickinson's offer will be withdrawn.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Frederick C. Mr. Slee also says that the justice has issued an injunction restraining the exposition company from discharging any of its officials or agents until the case is settled. The ground for the action is alleged irregularity in the makeup of the jury of awards.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The University of Pennsylvania football team was defeated by West Point military academy Wednesday, and incidentally suffered one of the worst defeats in their football history. D. G. EDWARDS,

Pass. Traffic Mgr.,
Cincinnati, O.THE OLD MAID'S
BALLOON ASCENSION

IT WAS some time in June that Miss Denby began to "make a show" of herself. From the modest responsibility of neutral tints, cotton gowns and a sailor hat she suddenly burgeoned forth into such a splendid radiance of millinery and mode that all her neighbors wondered. For Miss Denby was an old maid. She had accumulated a modest fortune making dresses, and, being 52 years old, as she admitted with a weazen smile, she had retired permanently from business and settled down to a routine of tea drinking and novel reading, relieved, if not illuminated, by daily strolls in the park and a Sunday visit to church.

Homely? Not exactly, for she had bright, busy little eyes, a straight nose that had not always been as red as now, and a cute mouth that puckered up at the corner when she smiled. Her form was of the "ironing board" style—that is, neither plump nor angular—but her hands and feet were the chief pride of her romantic little heart, for they were as small as a child's. Indeed, what most astounded the neighbors when they first began to "notice" the old maid's transformation was the marvelous, shoes, slippers and gloves she wore. For instance, the day Mrs. Gallagher followed her over to the park Miss Denby's little tootsies were incased in gray, unadorned kids, with—dent while strolling near the beach. He had found and restored to her a novel which she had left on a bench. The casual acquaintance thus begun had flourished by reason of his wondrous ardor and the fact that she walked daily in the park. The count had wooed and won her "with the fierce and swift gallantry of the old world," Miss Denby said, and she had resisted him as long as her sympathetic heart could withstand his eloquence.

"He's in Chicago to float a loan for the Greek government," she explained. "As soon as Crete is annexed, the count, my count" (a smile and a blush) "is to be absolute ruler of the island. But he is very anxious to depart, and the wedding day must be fixed to-morrow night. Turkish spies are constantly at his heels. There is hardly a day that he does not point one out to me. I have seen them lurking behind the bushes, and every time we part I am in agony for fear something should befall him."

Mrs. Gallagher was staring now like a big bullfrog watching a red flannel bait. "Will you come up to-morrow night and meet him?" she hears Miss Denby say.

"I will," murmured the dumfounded Mrs. Gallagher, backing toward the door. It was midnight when she had oh, shocking! French heels. But that was not what finally set the venomous tongues of gossip to wagging.

Mrs. Gallagher had actually caught the old maid keeping tryst with a man!

From that day the poor old dressmaker's suddenly glorified wardrobe was explained. Mrs. Gallagher had watched her foregather with a handsome, dark-haired stranger, and, leaning on his stalwart arm, stroll away among the trees. It was evident that Miss Denby was in love and that her suitor was a young and dashing fellow.

"After her money, I guess," said Mrs. Jenkins to Mrs. Jones over the back fence.

Some said it was "disgraceful," others suspected that Miss Denby was a "little cracked," but they all became very friendly with her, drank her tea, admired her gowns and put themselves in the way of becoming her confidants. The good women even began to take morning tramps in the park, and the queer little dressmaker, walking with her young suitor, was mortified and puzzled at the frequency of these accidental meetings.

Finally Miss Denby decided to open her heart to Mrs. Gallagher, and she did it like this:

"Have another cup of coffee before you go, Mrs. Gallagher."

"Sure I've had seven."

"Just one more," then whispering:

"I've got a secret for you."

Miss Denby blushed and simpered demurely as she poured out the tea, and her fat guest could hardly wait to come at the long-deferred mystery.

"What's your secret, Sophronia? Sure you ain't going to move?"

"Guess again!" giggled the old maid.

"Not that."

"I'll give up," admitted the other, who enjoyed the deception.

"A wedding!" gurgled Miss Denby.

"But, mind, it's a secret yet. I'm going to invite him up, hee-hee, hee-hee, and I want you to come and chaperon me."

Mrs. Gallagher was staring open-mouthed.

"Sophronia Denby!" she gasped.

"Married! You going to be married?"

"To the finest, handsomest, noblest, richest—he's a prince—"

"Ah, bother!"

"A Greek nobleman, Count Sardanapalus."

"And what business is he in?"

"Business! Oh, dear, none! He's a nobleman, owns an island and all that sort of thing."

The old maid seemed almost transfigured with enthusiasm. She said she had met her noble lover quite by acci-finished her rounds of the flats, and at the hour appointed for the count's arrival the population of the building was on the front steps.

Sure enough, at eight o'clock, the handsome foreigner came striding along. He paused a moment in front of Miss Denby's entrance, looked up and down the street and then sprang nimbly up the stairway.

The fluttering old maid, "assisted" by Mrs. Phelim Gallagher, received him. "With your permission, madame," he said, taking a parcel from his pocket.

"I have brought mademoiselle a little gift. It is an heirloom in our family; my ancestors captured it from King Priam in the Trojan war."

He handed the package to the blushing Miss Denby and kissed her tiny hand as she bowed over it.

"It is one of the gold shoes from the Trojan horse," he resumed, with rare dignity. "Each nail is set with a priceless diamond, and—"

He was interrupted by a little scream from Sophronia, who had unwrapped the parcel, and found an old rusty horseshoe, very dirty, twisted and worn. But the next moment she had tapped his wrist with her fan and laughed:

"What a wag you are, count! For ever cracking jokes."

Mrs. Gallagher didn't know what to say or do. She stood there staring at Count Sardanapalus as if in doubt whether to hit him with the horseshoe or run away. Indeed, she was sidling toward the door when the bell rang. She opened it in time to hear the strange guest shout:

"Bar the door or we are lost!"

But Mrs. Gallagher opened it. A sandy-haired, heavy-set man brushed rudely in, laid a hand on the count's shoulder and said:

"Come, your grace the balloon is ready."

"Aha," said the dramatic Greek, "my country first! Forward, gentlemen! To the balloon!"

With a grand bow he stalked out of the room like a monarch going to block. Miss Denby collapsed into a chair. The sandy courier followed his master. Mrs. Gallagher followed the courier.

"Who is he?" whispered the fat woman to the count's attendant.

"He's a bug," growled the man; "went nutty on balloons. Acts all right till you mention his balloon. Then he goes home and gets into a swing. He thinks it's a war balloon, and he sails all over the world in it. Good night."

Miss Denby did move on the 1st of September.—John H. Raftery, in Chicago Record-Herald.

FOR LOVERS OF FIGURES.

Some Elaborate Calculations as to the Possibilities of a Lead Pencil.

"I have been figuring on the possibilities of a lead pencil," said a young man who has a penchant for the statistical side of things, "and you would really be surprised to know what a man can do with one lead pencil. How many words are there in a lead pencil? How many columns of newspaper matter? How many pages of a book of the average size? How many poems, essays, sermons and things of that sort may one find in the lead of an ordinary pencil? Really these questions are not easily answered, but one may arrive at a reasonable approximation by doing a little sum in arithmetic. In the first place, the average pencil is seven inches long. The average diameter of the pencil used by men who write a great deal is one-twelfth of an inch. Considering the wood and lead the point of a pencil measures about one-half of an inch, one-quarter of an inch representing the lead portion. Allowing for breaks and scratches, one-quarter of an inch of lead will write two columns of matter for the ordinary newspaper, assuming that the pencil is not of the extremely soft character. There are about 1,800 words in a full column of a newspaper of the average size. Two columns would represent 3,600 words. So we get this number of words out of one-quarter of an inch of lead," says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "Out of an inch of lead we would get four times 3,600, or 14,400 words. Out of seven inches we would get 100,800 words. So far as the number of words is concerned, we have in this result the possibilities of the lead pencil. Allowing 1,800 words to the column this would mean 56 columns of solid matter, or an eight-page paper of the seven-column width. Two columns a day is a good average for a reporter. In order to grind out 56 columns of solid matter it would require on this basis the reportorial energies of 28 men. In other words, there is enough lead in a pencil seven inches long to keep 28 men busy for the average time put in by newspaper writers in one day. This would mean that one pencil, with due care and attention and without any unnecessary waste, ought to do one man nearly a month. A man can buy a lead pencil for five cents. The average price paid for the best newspaper of the country for accepted matter is five dollars a column. If one pencil will write 56 columns of matter, it is possible for a newspaper writer to earn, on an investment of five cents, $280. From this it would seem that there is money in a lead pencil, and on the face of it it looks like one of the very best investments one could make, and yet there are men in the business who look at the matter from another standpoint, for instead of being a prolific producer of wealth, the pencil generally leaves one haunted by the ironies of poverty."

A Different Matter.

"I want to get a muzzle," said the crabbed man, entering the hardware store.

"Like this one, sir?" said the clerk, exhibiting a certain pattern.

"Oh, my, no! That would hold the mouth too tightly shut."

"I just sold one of them to a woman, sir."

"Well, it would be all right for a woman, young man; but I want mine for a dog."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Great Food Staple.

Rice forms a larger part of human food than the product of any other one plant, being the diet of India, China and the Malayan islands and occupying a place on the tables of 90 per cent. of the inhabitants of the civilized world. SOURCE OF ROARING RIVER.

Strange Missouri Stream That Takes Its Rise from a Spring in the Ozark Mountains.

To one who has investigated the heads of different rivers and noted the law laid down by nature, regulating their origin to be, that they receive their supply of water from tributaries which in turn are fed from insignificant branches, a trip to the source of the Roaring river in southwestern Missouri would be a revelation. This river makes its first appearance in the form of a tremendous spring which boils up immediately at the mouth of a cave, whose chambers extend far into the Ozark mountains. From the mouth of the cave the water dashes down the gorge with a roar of thunder for a distance of about 1,000 feet, where it turns at right angles around a palisade known as "Deer's Leap," thence it takes on a zig-zag course until it joins the White river a few miles beyond, crossing the wagon road seventeen times in seven miles. Its fords are dangerous, owing to quicksand, and not being navigable at any point it is of no importance except for its picturesqueness; but as to that feature it has no rival for one of its length and is supposed to have served as a bullseye for more camera enthusiasts and as a subject for more genuine and would-be artists of the brush than has any other place of interest within a radius of many miles, says the New York Sun.

Its water, coming as it does from the spring, is clear as crystal and of green tint. Fish can be plainly seen as they play among the rocks and waterlogged logs that lie at the bottom of the river a few feet from the spring. At the edge of the huge spring is what is known as the dead line which is simply a fallen tree of small diameter that rests upon a couple of rocks. On the outside of this separating line the water is knee deep, but inside of the same lies the boiling spring, thus far found to be unfathomable. A neighboring blacksmith known as the prophet, because of his sage remarks and eccentricities, attempted to find sounding by lowering into the spring a heavy anvil suspended at the end of a rope 332 feet in length. Upon failing to find what he went after at that depth some one asked him why he did not tie on more rope and let the weight down still farther. He replied that he was afraid it would fall into the hands of the Chinese and then he would have to go to the other side of the world to recover it; which remark this much-bewildered sage made without any apparent effort or bad after effect upon his constitution.

The cave overhanging the spring extends back 75 feet, and, along with its connecting chambers, forms an ample playground for the myriads of bats which dart about the dismal vaults.

A young man attempted to dive down in the big spring and bring up some important news to the world concerning its origin. He dived and swam downward as far as he was able—which was not a great distance owing to the strength of the spring, but on rising to the surface he found himself cut off from the outside world by a partition of solid rock and in total darkness. He had come up through another channel and found himself in a dungeon filled with bats without number. Failing to find an aperture through which to escape and finding himself rapidly becoming unnerved by the situation, he taxied his remaining strength to the utmost, repeated his dive and fortunately came up to the opposite side of the division which had imprisoned him, landing in an exhausted condition from which he never recovered.

The pines in the vicinity grow to huge proportions, and in the more thickly covered sections exists an illicit distillery element, which it is well to shun, unless one has the pass-word. Owing to the wildness of the locality the sportsman need not go home with an empty bag, for game is abundant.

Envy.

Most people are a little envious.—Washington (Ia.) Democrat.

ONE LITTLE WORD.

Harris—Do you see that young lady walking back there? Well, she was an early love of mine, and one simple little word parted us forever.

Parris—Dear me! Is that so? And what was that word?

Harris—When I asked her to marry me she said "no."

H. C. Watkins, sexton of the Methodist Church, Springfield, Pa., says: "My wife has been very bad with kidney trouble and tried several doctors without benefit. After taking one bottle of Foley's Kidney Cure, was much better, and was completely cured after taking four bottles."—Clark & Kenney.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Greens August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aid digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Modern Surgery Surpassed.

"While suffering from a bad case of piles, I consulted a physician who advised me to try a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve," says G. F. Carter, of Atlanta, Ga. "I procured a box and was entirely cured. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is a splendid cure for piles, giving relief instantly, and I hereby recommend it to all sufferers." Surgery is unnecessary to cure piles. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure any case. Cuts, bruises, burns and all other wounds are also quickly cured by it. Beware of counterfeits. W. T. Brooks.

Poison Oak Poison Ivy

are among the best known of the many dangerous wild plants and shrubs. To touch or handle them quickly produces swelling and inflammation with intense itching and burning of the skin. The eruption soon disappears, the sufferer hopes forever; but almost as soon as the little blisters and pustules appeared the poison had reached the blood, and will break out at regular intervals and each time in a more aggravated form. This poison will linger in the system for years, and every atom of it must be forced out of the blood before you can expect a perfect, permanent cure.

SSS Nature's Antidote FOR Nature's Poisons.

is the only cure for Poison Oak, Poison Ivy, and all noxious plants. It is composed exclusively of roots and herbs. Now is the time to get the poison out of your system, as delay makes your condition worse. Don't experiment longer with salves, washes and soaps—they never cure. Mr. S. M. Marshall, bookkeeper of the Atlanta (Ga.) Gas Light Co., was poisoned with Poison Oak. He took Sulphur, Arsenic and various other drugs, and applied externally numerous lotions and salves with no benefit. At times the swelling and inflammation was so severe he was almost blind. For eight years the poison would break out every season. His condition was much improved after taking one bottle of S. S. S., and a few bottles cleared his blood of the poison, and all evidences of the disease disappeared.

People are often poisoned without knowing when or how. Explain your case fully to our physicians, and they will cheerfully give such information and advice as you require, without charge, and we will send at the same time an interesting book on Blood and Skin Diseases. Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

I HAVE one of the best established trades in the city from the simple fact that I run the best barber in town. Hot and cold baths always ready. CARL CRAWFORD.

Chas. Replogle, of Atwater, O., was unable to work on account of kidney trouble. After using Foley's Kidney Cure four days he was cured.—Clark & Kenney.

Mr. John Tippi, Colton, O., says: "Foley's Honey and Tar cured my little girl of a severe cough and inflamed tonsils"—Clarke & Kenney.

Ulcers, open or obstinate sores, scalds and piles, quickly cured by Banner Salve, the most healing medicine in the world.—Clark & Kenney.

A Physician Testifies.

"I have taken Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and have never used anything in my life that did me the good that did," says County Physician Geo. W. Scroggs, of Hall county, Ga. "Being a physician, I have prescribed it and found it to give the best results." If the food you eat remains undigested in your stomach it decays there and poisons the system. You can prevent this by dieting, but that means starvation. Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. You need suffer from neither dyspepsia nor starvation, the worst cases quickly cured. Never fails. W. T. Brooks.
